Supervision of Police Personnel (SPP) offers instruction in foundational supervisory and managerial skills and teaches first-line supervisors how to manage contemporary leadership challenges. This two-week course focuses on understanding human behavior and day-to-day work relationships with subordinates, superiors, and the public.

Designed for officers with little or no formal supervisory training, students complete this critical course understanding that knowing what action to take — and how to implement that action — can be the difference between success or failure on the street or in the office.

SPP offers the strong foundations for supervisory and managerial skills that will benefit new law enforcement supervisors throughout their careers.
