Synopsis of Training: The high-performance law enforcement resuscitation course is an innovative training program for sworn peace officers which interweaves classroom learning, hands-on skills building, and reality-based training scenarios designed to enhance officers' lifesaving skills under stress. The course provides up-to-date science and research to ensure law enforcement is provided with the high-performance resuscitation training needed for incorporation in the field.

This 2-day course is designed to bring the participant from student to trainer providing students realistic field conditions, stress inoculation, instructor development, and curriculum framework for time-sensitive medical emergencies which law enforcement frequently respond to. This course utilizes experienced evaluators, live actors, high-fidelity feedback manikins, bleeding simulators and more to evaluate and enhance participants' lifesaving skills. Day 1 is comprised of classroom learning, skills-building, and reality-based training scenarios.
